

LAST WEEK: The Eagles remained unscathed through three weeks of action after last week's 61-0 win over winless Belmont. "We got a good win tonight," CC coach Brett Fox said shortly after the game. "I was proud of the team as a whole, especially the defense getting the shutout." There wasn't one Play of the Game but, rather, a multitude of magical snaps for the Eagles. "We had a lot of big plays," Fox said. "(The highlights on the night were) getting the shutout and getting lots of guys touches on offense." The touches were spread evenly to several Eagles, including the following CC benefactors: junior Trace Parrish (five carries for 103 yards), senior Statton Fuller (2-69 rushing, plus three receptions for 72 yards) and senior Landon Atkins (67 yards on six carries). All told the CC ground attack produced 346 yards on 25 official carries (a robust 13.8 yards-per-carry average).

TONIGHT: Columbia City hosts the 2-1 Huntington North Vikings in a key Northeast 8 tilt for both clubs. "Huntington North is a much improved team that is hungry for victories," Fox warned. "They are playing aggressively and are making plays on offense." In last year's meeting with the Vikings (a 55-27 CC conquest), the Eagles gashed the HN defense for 424 rushing yards and six rushing scores on 43 attempts (9.9 ypc). Fuller had three carries for 72 yards and one TD in that game, while also grabbing two receptions for 31 yards and a score. Zack Berry led the defensive effort vs. the Vikings in '23, posting a game-high 10 tackles. Berry will be a key cog in the Eagles' defensive scheme as CC looks to force HN QB Tony Decker to the air.
